Introduction

When it comes to options for treatment and recovery services, there is a lot available for consideration. Indeed, perhaps enough to fill a volume the size of War and Peace, which was 1,225 pages long. Listing all those service organizations would not make for a manageable resource guide. Fortunately, there are ways to find resources without printing out hundreds of pages of lists.

In addition to the enormous number of addiction and recovery services out there, we do not want to list them individually in a guide as if we are recommending them. There is no way for us to truly know enough about each and every entity providing addiction treatment and recovery services for us to recommend them. And, for that reason, we must caution you not to actually recommend a particular treatment or service provider. If something should go wrong, we don't want you being blamed for making the "recommendation."

Rather, the purpose of this resource guide is to enable you to give direction and assistance to those you are accompanying on a journey of recovery so he or she can find the help that might meet their needs. It's not about specifically recommending service providers. If, however, you have had personal experience with a particular service provider, you are welcome to share your personal experience, but we still caution you on "recommending" a particular entity. Your role is to provide options. The ultimate decision on where to go or how to proceed always remains with the person you are accompanying.

All available Diocesan Editions of the Resource Guide, as well as the booklet, How Parishes can be a Part of Their Communities' Journey of Recovery, can be found on the New Jersey Catholic Conference (NJCC) website at <https://www.njcatholic.org/substance-abuse>.

How to use this guide¹

As we see it, there are two (2) ways to gain knowledge in order to answer a question about a particular topic. The first is by learning all you can about the topic so you will actually know the answer when asked a question. The second is by knowing how to find it.

This guide is set up to help you with the latter form of knowledge – knowing how to find it. In this case, more specifically, knowing how to find addiction treatment and/or recovery services that may be available to assist the person you are accompanying on his or her recovery journey.

So, this guide will start with an example of a site that can help identify the various treatment and recovery services in the nation and state. It is not, however, the only site available, but it is a good example. Then, after this example, we will provide a list of national/federal sites, state sites and Catholic sites with options that can be available anywhere in the country, throughout the entire state, or even as detailed as within a specific city or a defined geographic area.

After looking far and wide, the guide provides local area resources – specifically, those in the Diocese within which you live and serve in this ministry. We will look at diocesan-wide options and multi-county sites as well as county sites – of course, the counties focused on will be the specific counties within the diocese based on the diocesan edition being used. Diocesan parish-based services may also be provided as both service resources as well as examples of ministries to consider developing at your parish.

Information about self-help and peer support group are provided. Suggested reading materials are also presented. Finally, you may want to consider getting additional training and education for which resource opportunities are provided for consideration.

¹ Please take special note. This resource guide has information in various Federal, State and County agencies, as well as links to private organizations and/or ministries – both Catholic and non-Catholic. The inclusion of any agency or organization's name and information does not constitute endorsement or recommendation of the resources or the information, products, or services provided by the resource on the part of by the New Jersey Catholic Committee on Addiction and Recovery Ministries (NJ CC~ARM) or the Diocese of Camden. The NJ CC~ARM and Camden Diocese do not have full knowledge of or experience with the services provided by each and every resource listed here. The NJ CC~ARM and Camden Diocese also do not exercise any control over the content on any resource websites or services they provide.

SECTION I

HOW TO FIND ADDICTION AND RECOVERY RESOURCES

~An Example Site Walk Through~

The State of New Jersey Division of Mental Health and Addiction Services (DMHAS) has website that provides a wealth of information. For our purposes, the most important part of the DMHAS website is their searchable directory to assist in locating programs for alcohol and drug abuse treatment and related services. Here's how to use it - go to*:

- <https://www.state.nj.us/humanservices/dmhas/home/hotlines>
- Click on "Are You Looking for Substance Abuse Treatment?"
- Click on the "searchable directory."
- You'll see a screen that asks:
 - What type of treatment are you interested in?
 - Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT)
 - Inpatient Services
 - Outpatient Services
 - Withdrawal Management
 - You can check one or all of the boxes.
- You can then indicate the area to search as:
 - Zip Code/City, State
 - County
 - Provider Name.
- Once you've indicated the treatment and area of interest, hit "Search."
- The search results will appear below the search area. You can even export the search results to a PDF.
- You are also able to reset the search parameters to start over if you need another area of treatment.

AGAIN, the website for DMHAS is a wealth of information. For example, you can see who your County Drug and Alcohol Director is and how to contact them to inquire about local treatment resources. So, explore it to find more.

- * Please note the site's appearance may change periodically, but the general search process should be fairly consistent or at least similar.

TRAINING – Offer periodic workshops throughout the state on topics of interest to those starting, running and maintaining support groups.

PRESENTATIONS ABOUT SUPPORT GROUPS –Free presentations on the availability and benefits of self-help support groups and how they can assist congregants, families and friends.

WEBSITE – Information of interest to group leaders, professionals who make referrals to groups, to those interested in starting new groups, and the general community. We also have contact information on support groups in New Jersey on our website.

CONCLUSION¹

Whatever your parish develops from the ideas presented in the booklet, How Parishes can be a Part of Their Communities' Journey of Recovery, and whatever ways you use this resource guide, we hope you will commit to making them a permanent part of your parish life. May the Holy Spirit be with you in this ministry and inspire you as you accompany our brothers and sisters on their addiction and recovery journeys.

Remember: addressing the scourge of addiction and supporting recovery is not a sprint, but a very long marathon.

As a final note, all available Diocesan Editions of the Resource Guide, as well as the booklet, How Parishes can be a Part of Their Communities' Journey of Recovery, can be found on the Addiction and Substance Abuse page of the New Jersey Catholic Conference (NJCC) website at:
